BEAMS FALL, 4 MEN HURT
Victims Drop from Fourth Floor of Parochial School.

Four workmen were badly injured late yesterday afternoon when the beams erected to support the roof of St. Gregory parochial school, in course of construction at No. 125 to 144 West 96th street, collapsed under the weight of mortar and a seven-and-a-half-foot girder. The men were at work on the fourth floor when the beams fell, and were taken to the Poly-clinic Hospital, suffering from internal injuries.

Those injured were Martin Barrow, of No. 259 East 125th street; Gustave Gashoff, of No. 524 East 119th street; Andrew Abes, of No. 607 Amsterdam avenue, and Ludwig Begnie, of No. 339 East 121st street. Fifty men were at work in the building when the beams fell.

Following the accident, an investigation to determine the responsibility for the collapse of the girders was held in the W. 169th street station. William E. Lyon, representing the contracting firm of William E. Lyon & Co., contended, when questioned by Rudolph P. Miller, Superintendent of Buildings in the Borough of Manhattan, that the employees of the Thomas J. Waters Company deposited too great a quantity of masonry on the girders and maintained this was the cause of the collapse.

Thomas J. Waters, representing the firm of Thomas J. Waters & Co., declared, however, that had the girders been properly riveted in place the accident would not have occurred. Superintendent Miller decided to make no arrest until the matter in dispute was decided by building inspectors.

Fifty men were at work in the building when the girders fell. The four injured narrowly escaped death. With the girders fell a quantity of lumber, which had been placed on the girders in order that the workmen could safely walk about.
